

My name is Barlo Solorzano. I am 19 years old and I am from El Salvador.

When I draw this paper I was thinking about my future. It was in the middle of the cold winter in Washington DC. It was snowing and very cold.

I picture my future as a beautiful plant. A plant that can grow big and beautiful, like my dreams.

I dream about the future also as a feather. I draw the plants in a very feather way because I wanted to represent something that it can be light and fly if the wind hits.

I see myself as someone who can adapt, as well as my future. I see my strengths as a big and adaptable plant that grows and grows until achieve the place that it needs to be.

Thanks,

Barlo.
